

MIGRATION

Migration is when the people don't stay in their hometown or country. They sometimes go to live in a different place. There are different types of migration and people migrate for a lot of different reasons.

INTERNAL/INTERNATIONAL MIGRATION

People often migrate to a different place in the same country. This is an internal migration.

Sometimes people migrate to a different country. We call this international migration.

VOLUNTARY/FORCED MIGRATION

A lot of people choose to migrate. Some of them migrate for economic reasons, a better job and a better life conditions. They often want to be nearer to their family and friends. This is VOLUNTARY MIGRATION.

Sometimes people don't choose to migrate. They often move for political and environmental reasons. Some people migrate because there is a war in their country or a natural disaster. We call this people refugees. This is FORCED MIGRATION.

Some people also have to migrate when there is a severe economic crisis in their country and they can't find work.

WAVES OF MIGRATION

There were some waves of migration. From 1861 to 1914, after the Unification of Italy, the Italians were very poor and most of them travelled to America international migration stopped during World War I. After the war a lot of people left Italy. At the end of World War II there was another wave of migration. A lot of families went to other countries. But not everyone stayed in their new country: they returned to Italy.

MAADI CONVENTION

- THE UMANITY HAS NO BORDER.
- There are some poor countries: Eritrea, Ethiopia, Somalia and Sudan.
- That countries are between Indian Ocean and Red Sea.
- There are two types of migration: internal and international.
- The children under five year aren't considered born.
- In Africa the life is short for hygienic conditions.
- The refugees are people that don't choose to migrate.
- There are a lot of refugees in the world.
- In Sudan there are a lot of civil wars.
- A lot of people are forced to migrate.
- Refugees usually migrate on small boats.The journeys are very dangerous and many people die.
- In Sudan there aren't many schools and hospitals.
- The toilette is a circular building.
- Gratuity arm:is a word that consist of doing an action without return.